the results showed that when performing this test, walking produced slightly worse scores than sitting. these extreme sensitivities make functioning in a normal workplace uncomfortable or even painful.